I am eighteen years old. In reality, I devoted most of my free time to playing soccer for three years. However, I have recently come to wonder what I would do if I were a freshman in high school again. Now I am imagining what I would like to do if I were sixteen years old.

Firstly, I would like to start studying Swahili. Swahili is used as a lingua franca in much of southeast Africa. The reason I would like to study Swahili is that I want to work in Africa as a doctor as soon as I get my doctor's license. A lot of poor people in Africa are in need of medical care. For example, in many African countries, average life expectancies are much lower than in advanced countries. I would like to build a good general foundation of Swahili during my high school years because I think I should concentrate on studying medicine after I enter medical school.

Secondly, I would like to visit several hospitals in southeast Africa during summer vacation in order to see for myself how things really are there. I believe that would stimulate me to study harder in order to enter a good medical school.
