[V]

If I could prevent one invention from having ever been created, I would prevent the invention of fast fashion. Fast fashion produces extreme profit for companies as it generates a significant amount of products, mainly cheap and trendy clothing, with minimal consideration for the environment and workers. Workers are forced to work for long hours under cruel working conditions for little to no pay. The production of such clothes also contributes to environmental issues since consumers are more willing to throw away these products, which often quickly go out of fashion or become damaged because of the low quality. The elimination of this invention would greatly benefit the world. Without it, we could more easily create sustainable and eco-friendly businesses that meets the needs of consumers, can make profits, and provide their workers a sustainable income that will support themselves and their loved ones.
