[Writing Question]

In this passage, the author discusses two types of attitudes that doctors can have: avoiding responsibility for medical errors by using euphemisms and honestly accepting responsibility for mistakes. I believe the latter attitude is more appropriate.

Firstly, doctors' dishonesty can lead to a loss of patient trust. Trust is one of the most critical factors in the medical field. If doctors try to avoid responsibility for their mistakes, patients may begin to distrust people in the medical field. Consequently, the medical community as a whole will suffer.

Secondly, doctors should acknowledge their mistakes because doing so can lead to improvements in medicine. For instance, if a doctor makes a mistake during surgery and takes accountability, they can work to prevent the same error from happening again.

In conclusion, I fully support doctors who accept responsibility for their mistakes.
